Dear Hiring Manager,

I am excited to be applying for your company's instructional design position. While I am new to the field, I have recently graduated from the University of North Texas with a master's degree in learning technologies, where I maintained a 4.0 GPA. During my master's program, I have worked collaboratively to create instructional design projects and online courses.

While I am new to the field of instructional design, experience in the education and technical fields would make me an asset to any team. My six-years as a high school biology teacher has given me extensive experience putting myself in the minds of both instructors and learners of diverse needs. As a full-stack web developer, I have learned the need to keep up with a wide variety of technologies and to produce creative solutions to challenging technical problems.

I am excited to start this new chapter in my career, and I am looking forward to using my hard work ethic and unique experiences to augment your team. Thank you for your consideration. I hope to hear from you soon.

Regards,

Stephen Teng
